Did He Accept Bribes?

Political Leaders Demand Probe Of Sommers Case

Bennett Delays Meeting Press

By PETER BRUTON

An immediate judicial inquiry to determine whether or not former lands and forests minister Robert E. Sommers accepted bribes in exchange for forest management licences was demanded by leaders of B.C.'s three opposition parties last night.

The identical demand was voiced in turn by CCF leader Robert Strachan, Liberal leader Arthur Laing, and Progressive Conservative chieftain Deane Finlayson.

PREMIER SILENT

Premier Bennett merely countered with:

"I have no comment on the matter at all."

The strongly-worded statements came a few hours after Mr. Justice J. V. Cline tossed out that 22-month-old slander suit brought by Mr. Sommers against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy. See Page 2.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan charged Mr. Sommers with "causing public mischief" to prevent the public and the legislature from determining the truth of the case.

"No such murk ever before covered a government in our history," said Mr. Laing. "If the charges are true Attorney-General Robert Bonner must be the first to resign... and the firms involved must be prosecuted."

Said Mr. Finlayson: "Premier Bennett should come down from his ivory tower and face up to the issue."

But the premier declined to hold his regular Monday press conference, putting it off until this afternoon, and refused comment to reporters who waited outside his office.

"The CCF is still not saying whether Mr. Sommers is guilty or not guilty," said Mr. Strachan. "But he caused public mischief in wasting the time of the courts to prevent the public and the legislature from determining the truth of the case."

"Premier Bennett and Attorney-General Bonner are equally guilty in using this court case which Sommers had no intention of going through with to prevent an inquiry," he added.

"It now appears the libel suit was merely a stalling procedure to stall an impartial investigation."

"For two years the honor and the integrity of the provincial legislature has been under a cloud while Sommers, Bennett and Bonner treated the legislature and the people of B.C. with contempt."

"To the premier I would say that if he continues to treat the voters of this province with this contempt he will meet the same fate which befell the Coalition. There must be no more excuses by the premier and the attorney-general."

DEMAND REITERATED
"Appropriate action must be taken without further delay. The CCF position is the same now as it has been since December, 1955—we call on the government to set up an impartial judicial inquiry to determine once and for all whether or not Mr. Sommers did accept bribes in return for the granting of forest management licences."

"Premier Bennett can no longer remain silent," thundered Liberal leader Laing.

TRUE OR FALSE?
"The charges are either true or false. If true the attorney-general must be the first to resign. He brushed off Sturdy and suppressed the Butler (RCMP) report. If the accusation is true the firms involved must be prosecuted and the licences cancelled."

"How can the legislature introduce any forest legislation until this mess has been cleared?" he asked.

Mr. Finlayson said: "The premier should come down out of his ivory tower and face up to the issue. To keep faith with the people he should order a royal inquiry to determine whether or not Sommers while minister of lands and forests abused the authority with which he had been entrusted."

PREMIER MANNING
"... we are concerned"

Ottawa Parley

Manning Worries Over Oil

EDMONTON (CP)—Premier Manning said Monday problems of exporting Alberta's oil production are reaching serious proportions and he will confer with Prime Minister Diefenbaker at Ottawa Thursday to discuss the matter.

"We are concerned with the volume of Alberta oil getting into the Pacific Northwest, particularly the United States section there," he said.

He would not go into detail, but Middle East oil has been brought to that area in increasing quantities since the Middle East flare-ups began a year ago.

Alberta's monthly average crude oil production has dwindled during recent months and the quota—set by market demand—for October is about 310,000 barrels daily, down nearly 100,000 barrels daily from the same month a year ago.

Friction Tape Kept Ball In One Piece

(A clear and engaging look back into childhood, the best-selling book, "Where Did You Go?" "Out" "What Did You Do?" "Nothing," continues here today.)

By ROBERT PAUL SMITH
Chapter Two

I remember a baseball called a nickel rocket. I have a feeling even then inflation was on us and a nickel rocket cost 10 cents. The first thing you did with a nickel rocket was to nip into somebody's garage and hook a roll of friction tape. If the garage was dark enough, for a minute or an hour you would grab the end of the tape and pull it back quickly and see the blue sparks.

None of my teachers told me about static electricity, nor did anyone's father. I don't even know that they knew about this, or indeed that anybody but me knows about it to this day. Some kids found out that if you pulled the end of the tape back quickly, you saw blue sparks. Some kids told some other kid, and some other kid told some other kid. We knew it. All kids knew it.

When we got tired of watching the sparks we wrapped the nickel rocket with friction tape, and if any was left over, we wrapped the handle of the bat with it. I guess I know now the reason we did this with the nickel rocket was

Courthouse, City Hall Planned Around Square

By R. O. MARRION

A 6½-acre civic centre on Cathedral Hill, including Victoria's new courthouse, a new city hall and other public buildings, and a public square, is suggested in a report sent to city council yesterday by the Capital Region Planning Board.

The report was prepared after the provincial government asked the board's advice on the location of a new courthouse and land registry office.

It recommends that the civic centre development be undertaken as a joint project of the province and city.

RESERVING SITES

The board said in an accompanying letter that as a part of preparation of a general plan for development of the capital region, it had been considering the need to reserve sites for important public buildings of the future, and was reporting at this time because of the provincial request for advice.

The suggested site extends from Blanshard to Quadra and from Burdett to the north side of Courtney. In this area, two acres are owned by the provincial government, 3½ acres are privately owned, and Courtney Street, which would be closed, amounts to nearly one acre.

THEATRE STAYS

On this site, if the board's recommendations were carried out, would eventually rise the new city hall, east of the Royal Theatre (which would be retained); the new courthouse, south of the city hall and beside it, the new land registry office near the corner of Quadra and Burdett; possibly a new museum and other smaller public buildings.

The development would include a public square for pageants and other outdoor functions, and the whole area would be terraced and otherwise landscaped.

Assessed value of land and buildings that would have to be acquired, the report says, is $140,000, and "at a second stage of development the remaining five lots on the north side of

Montreal Picks Senator Mayor

MONTREAL (BUP)—Liberal Senator Sarto Pournier was swept into office as the new mayor of Montreal last night as the electorate gave an overwhelming vote of confidence to his platform advocating a metropolitan system of government and a slum clearance plan.

Pournier, 49, was successful in his third bid for the top administrative post of Canada's largest city.

'Marvelous Development'

Mayor Welcomes Plan For Central Civic Centre

Mayor Percy Scourrah said yesterday that development of a civic centre along the lines suggested by the Capital Region Planning Board would be "a very logical development and one that would be a credit to the entire city."

Only fly in the ointment, the mayor said, would be the cost of acquiring the extra land, "and if it could be a joint provincial-municipal effort, as suggested, I think it would be a wonderful development."

MEETING POINT

"I can visualize a development that would be the central meeting point for many events that take place in the city."

"Having a civic square with the city hall, courthouse, land registry office and other buildings around it would be a marvelous development."

"On the other hand, the development of the area where the present courthouse is would give a face lifting to a depressed area and is worth some consideration. I would say, otherwise it will remain a depressed area indefinitely."

Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich was less enthusiastic, although he said Cathedral Hill seemed a good site for the new courthouse and land registry office.

"For a city hall, I still think the development of the city is northward, and the city hall should be out to the north," he said, granting that he was picturing the day when there would be amalgamation.

He suggested that it would be a mistake to "crowd everything downtown."

Joint Operations 'Feasible'—Chant

Works Minister W. N. Chant yesterday described the Capital Region Planning Board's civic centre proposal as "one of considerable merit."

"I feel it is quite an acceptable idea," he said, "and I think it's quite feasible that the city and government work together."

The minister was non-committal on possible cost-sharing of the project but said: "as far as our buildings are concerned we built them ourselves and the city builds theirs."

He added the proposal called for "quite an ambitious program and the general idea is commendable. How soon these things can be done, however, is another matter."

Mr. Chant said: "Ottawa's tight money policy puts a crimp in a lot of things."

"We wanted an overall idea what plan they (the CRPB) had in mind," concluded Mr. Chant. "They gave a lot of thought and study to it and came up with something which has a lot of merit."

'I Grabbed Bandit's Gun Hand'

TORONTO (BUP)—The bravery of a 44-year-old Ukrainian immigrant yesterday resulted in one of the quickest arrests ever made in Toronto and foiled a $2,000 hold-up in a Ukrainian credit union.

Paul Szewechuk, manager of a Ukrainian newspaper with offices in the same building, chased a fleeing gunman who ran into the street and boarded a street car.

"I shouted to the operator, 'Don't go, you've got a bandit aboard,'" Szewechuk said later.

"He opened the door and I closed with the man. He pulled out a gun and pushed it into my side. I grabbed hold of his gun-hand and twisted it behind his back, forcing it out of his hand."

"I stuck it in his side and ordered him off the street car. He was still struggling, but a policeman saw us and arrested him."

Broughton as well as one lot opening onto Fort might be acquired." (Market value is ordinarily much in excess of assessed value.)

"Cathedral Hill has the advantage that the nucleus for a civic centre has already been created by the location of Christ Church Cathedral, Pioneer Square, the Power Commission and the Royal Theatre on the boundaries of the site," the report says.

SETTING FOR WHOLE

"The addition of a new city hall, a courthouse and land registry office, and such other public buildings as might be accommodated, grouped around a civic square and landscaped areas, would provide each of these buildings with a setting which would not be duplicated if they were scattered on different sites."

The report suggests that at present the site is occupied "almost exclusively by parking lots and old houses of very low value. But in a few years, it says, there could be new buildings which would prohibit acquisition, and if it were acquired now, space not needed at once could be leased for parking purposes to help meet carrying charges on development."

However, it says, the following principles have been observed in considering the proposed general design of the centre:

1. Courtney should be closed to vehicular traffic and become a central pedestrian area, landscaped and providing a quiet, restful outlook from the buildings. (Courtney lies directly in front of the cathedral.)

2. To avoid monotonous development, the buildings should be arranged in orderly but symmetrical manner about the cathedral-Courtney axis.

3. The city hall should rise to a considerable height, nine or 10 storeys, to take advantage of this landmark position.

4. The courthouse and land registry office should be on the high (southern) side of the site, and should be handsome, low and dignified.

5. The area in from the cathedral and opposite city hall should be conceived as a civic square for pageantry and official outdoor functions. It should be decorated with fountains and sculpture.

6. Natural contours of the site should be preserved and accentuated.

7. Existing trees on the site should be preserved.

8. Pioneer Square should be considered an extension of the site and part of civic square should open onto it.

9. The Royal Theatre should be blended into the site by landscaping. A new commercial building such as a restaurant might be constructed on the south side of Broughton immediately east of the theatre, which could provide additional foyer and meeting space if the Royal were ever converted into a convention hall or civic theatre.

10. Parking space for 400 cars should be provided in a two-level structure.

11. Consideration should be given to opening the site out to Fort on the north by way of an arcade, and the remaining five lots on the north side of Broughton should be acquired for other public purposes at a second stage of development.

In recommending the site, the report says, the board considered that it should be large enough, readily accessible to residents from all parts of the city, and convenient to business and professional groups.

didn't know. It's just that that's where friction tape was. I feel it's got some connection with automobiles, that it was a way of helping to patch inner tubes, but I wouldn't bet a nickel either way.

Spun-felted

There must have been some time in my life when I played baseball with nine men on a team, but surely it was not on our block. We played with as many kids as were around, and I don't think there were eighteen kids on the block. We always carefully looked at the bat to make sure the label was up, because if the label wasn't up, it would split the bat. Is there any truth in this? I don't know. It was an article of faith, and any kid who didn't turn the label up was screamed at until he did.

My kids don't play baseball because of their magnificent inheritance (constitutional sloth and an inability to get out of the way of their own feet), but all the kids I see playing baseball these days are in something called The Little League and have a covey of over-seeing parents hanging around and bothering them and putting catcher's masks on them and making it so important the kids don't even know about the one o' cat, or one old cat, or whatever you called it.

They tell me these kids in the Little League cry when they lose a game. Nobody ever cried in our baseball games unless he caught a foul tip with the end of his finger, or unless someone slung the bat and caught the catcher across the shins with it, and since it was a kid umpiring, no matter what the score came up finally, you could argue long enough about any decision so that you either won or were robbed.

What I remember is the sound of a ball in a glove, and the feeling in my fingers when the bat threatened to split (you vibrated clear up to your ears, and somebody hollered at you to hold the label up) and I remember how somebody got some very precious stuff called neat-foot oil ("It comes from the foot of a neat, you dope!")

And we rubbed that in our gloves instead of Three-in-One.

And then there was the little kid who had been given a glove that we thought was too good for him, and from the loftiness of our advanced years, we advised him that the only way to really, truly, properly break it in was to rub it with horse dung and leave it in the sun.

Kids, as far as I can tell, don't do things like that any more. There's always some interfering grownup around being a pal to them, telling them where to put their feet when they stand at the plate. We found out. Stand the way you wanted to and there was everybody on your side hollering "Take your foot out of the bucket," and you took your foot out of the bucket. When things got tough for our side, we picked out a real little kid, just big enough to hold the bat and stand at the plate. Just stand there, we told him, and the pitcher would carry on for a while, how it was gyping, who could strike that low, then he'd throw him four straight balls and we had a man on— a man! — on base.

We used to play a game called stoop ball. It is my considered reflection that for three months out of every year, for years on end, all we did was play stoop ball. It had to be played with a golf ball, I don't know why. After a certain amount of time, the golf ball—which we wouldn't have had at all unless the cover was cut almost to ribbons — would have enough cuts in it so you could pull off the white covering.

Then for another three days, what you did was unwind the rubber band. I am not sure what you did with the rubber string you unwound. Except to wrap it around various parts of your body until the circulation stopped. Mostly, once again, it was just what kids did. Unwound the rubber. In the centre was a little white ball the size of an immie. Inside it, we knew, was something which was so dangerous it was inconceivable. There were two schools of thought. One, that it was an explosive so powerful that, that, that— well, jeez, it was an explosive! The other school of thought held that it was a poison that killed, not only on contact anybody who was foolhardy enough to open it, but it would strike dead, on the whole block, every person, cat, collie dog. It could also wither trees and probably melt the pavement.

We cut one open once, and a thick white liquid dribbled out. I was the wise guy. Somebody said it was poison, so I had to say it wasn't. I touched it. Catch me doing that today! That stuff there, that stuff— why jeez, it's an explosive!

I suppose this is all just an indication of my advanced years, but I don't know things now like I used to know them. What we knew as kids, what we learned from other kids, was not tentatively true, or extremely probable, or proven by science or polls or surveys. It was so!

Jewish Editor Urges:

Speak Up, Mr. Bennett

Premier Bennett was called on yesterday to dissociate the Social Credit government from an anti-Semitic blast levelled by a Peace River delegate Saturday at the annual provincial Sacred convention.

"Does this mean that Social Credit is going to institute anti-Semitic teachings in its internal educational program?" asked A. J. Arnold, editor and publisher of the weekly Jewish Western Bulletin.

A charge that "Zionism" had completely destroyed Christianity and would do the same to Social Credit unless the people were properly educated was levelled by Percy Young.

under a grave responsibility to speak out against this sort of thing."

Meanwhile, Noel Murphy, Social Credit League president, said the party was "pro-Social Credit and anti-nobody."

A few of our members in the past have been anti-Semitic but this does not reflect the view of the party and is a completely negative attitude," he said.

Mr. Murphy said in Vancouver he had not heard Mr. Young's remarks, but reporters recalled that the league president had remonstrated with the Dawson Creek man during a recess afterward.

Back Where It Started

THE dismissal of the Sommers slander action in the B.C. Supreme Court yesterday by Mr. Justice Clynne, for reasons of non-appearance of the plaintiff and failure to proceed with the complaint, re-opens for the British Columbia Government and the Legislature the long, involved and bitterly argued series of contentions which divided the House two years ago amid scene of unprecedented clamor. While one does not see what else the court could have done to bring determination in civil litigation which had stretched over 22 months, the dismissal of the slander suit settles little that was and is of public concern in the surrounding circumstances.

As the Colonist pointed out at the time the dispute was brought to the floor of the Legislature, the civil action for slander however determined could not answer the questions the Legislature and the public were asking and had every right to ask. It was not foreseen then that the dispute would drag on for two years, with only postponement and no determination of the grave allegations made against a former minister of the crown concerning the administration of forest management licences. This paper urged the appointment then of an investigating commission to sift the whole matter to the satisfaction of the Legislature and the electors alike.

The administration chose otherwise. Mr. Sommers was permitted by the premier and his colleagues to throw his dual portfolios on the table, with the counter assertion that the Liberals were out to wreck the forest management system. This answered allegation with allegation, but unravelled nothing insofar as the House or the public was concerned. Meanwhile there has been the Sloan inquiry into the forest management system on its own terms, without reference of any kind to charges and counter-charges which had rocked the Legislature for weeks.

Two years ago the government should have acted to resolve the political issues of the dispute, as distinct entirely from Mr. Sommers' civil action against a Mainland barrister, which ended in dismissal by the courts yesterday. There was every warrant for the creation of a legislative or a royal commission at the time. Now the administration is in virtually the same position, with an unsettled and damaging dispute over the administration of some part of the Province's affairs. In our view the government can only relieve itself from an intolerable position, harmful to itself and to British Columbia, by now ordering a thorough-going inquiry under the Crown. If Premier Bennett does not do so, he can only expect that, if not the Legislature, then the public will insist on this action at the next session. If forced into such an inquiry unwillingly, the administration might find the going difficult.

For Mutual Progress

THANKS to the initiative of Reeve Wurtele of Esquimalt, the Greater Victoria inter-municipal committee, inert for the past two years, may be restored to useful activity. Representatives of the other municipal councils, with varying degrees of enthusiasm, appear receptive to his proposal to put new life into the committee, and it now remains to be seen what action the councils will take to put the suggestion into effect. Mere endorsement of the idea in principle cannot accomplish much. The committee if it is to function as an effective liaison between municipalities often at loggerheads over matters of mutual interest and concern needs an energetic chairman and members with the determination and breadth of vision to make it work.

The inter-municipal committee is neither a step towards amalgamation nor a substitute for it. In fact it has nothing to do with municipal union in the administrative sense because it has no powers of any kind. It serves merely as a medium—and an extremely valuable one if full use is made of it—for the exchange of views on issues and projects affecting two or more municipalities or the region as a whole. In straightening out tangles and removing misunderstandings it can if given the opportunity do far more good in far less time than any exchanges of correspondence.

In an advisory capacity an active inter-municipal committee could function not only for the benefit of Greater Victoria but also of its component municipalities. Reeve Wurtele's recommendation that a revived and revitalized committee should meet regularly, and not spasmodically when some particular issue is raised, is a good one. Committees existing largely on paper, meeting only when someone thinks of a reason for calling the members together, are liable to die of inanition.

An Ugly Thesis

IT has been a disturbing facet of Social Credit, although perhaps only of its theorist branch, that on occasion it has betrayed an anti-Semitic bias. The Ottawa parliament has heard speeches of this nature, and last week the theme was aired by a Dawson Creek delegate at the annual convention of the B.C. Social Credit League. Regrettably also his attack on the Jews drew warm applause.

The wholesale condemnation of "Zionism" indicated its weakness, as generalities usually do, but it will do Social Credit no good. If as Premier Bennett believes his party will one day gain federal office it will have to eschew en route any taint of anti-Semitism. Mr. Bennett cannot be tarred by what every delegate says at an open Social convention but the association must be embarrassing.

The Dawson Creek speaker, Mr. Percy Young, left no doubt about his views. All the evils of the world, he said, are due to the Zionists, whom he described as people who call themselves Jews but are really Russians from Outer Mongolia who went to Israel in 1952 B.C. This would be during the reign of Solomon, some 1,800 years before Norsemen called Russ gave their name to Russia, and more than 2,000 years before the Mongol invasion of that country. Mr. Young has been doing some remarkable homework.

Even more strange perhaps was his assertion that Zionism has destroyed Christianity, a statement widely at variance with the oft repeated claim of some Social leaders that the Social Credit party was a Christian party. What Mr. Gagliardi thought of such a thesis can be imagined, since he preaches Christianity to his church congregation at Kamloops every weekend and, one does not doubt, preaches it well.

The absurdity of Mr. Young's remarks was demonstrated finally when he added later that Zionism controlled, among other things, Communism, Nazism, labor unions, banks, press and radio—in fact "everything but Social Credit." That rules out all but his own anti-Semitism. It is apparent there are two schools of thought in the Social philosophy; one representing the anti-Semitic theorists and the other typical of the present provincial government. Mr. Bennett would be wise publicly to disavow the former.

Interpreting the News:

Soviet Move Blocks Oil Line

By BERNARD KAPLAN
North American Newspaper Alliance

PARIS — Nikita Khrushchev has already scored one far-reaching victory in his new Middle East squeeze play against the Turks. French sources close to the Iraq Petroleum Company said that the new crisis manufactured by the Soviet Union has all but destroyed hope of constructing the Turkish-Iraqi pipeline, considered vitally necessary to Western Europe's economic security, within the foreseeable future.

The storm of anti-Turkish propaganda being whipped up throughout the Arab world means that the Iraq government may be powerless to do anything but reject a pipeline agreement with Turkey, the sources explained. Warnings to this effect from Baghdad are said already to have reached official quarters here and in London.

This defeat is regarded here as one of major importance. It means that Egypt and Syria, Russia's most intimate friends in the Arab world, will be able to continue holding the West up to "oil ransom" any time they choose through their respective control of the Suez Canal and the only operating pipelines from the Iraq and Arabian oil fields.

The plan to curb this menace by building a pipeline through friendly Turkey was approved at last spring's Bermuda conference, when the economic disruption caused by the blockage of the Suez Canal and the sabotage of the Syrian pipeline were still fresh in everyone's minds. A consortium of American, British, French and Dutch oil firms—17 in all—was entrusted with the engineering and technical responsibilities, including the drawing up of a final plan to be presented to the Iraqi government for its assent.

Work on this plan is continuing, according to sources here—the Iraq Petroleum Company, a leading member of the consortium, is one-quarter French owned. But whether it will be presented to the Baghdad government is increasingly doubtful. This is because outright rejection and a further blow to Western prestige appear certain. Further, it is recognized that forcing a formal decision on King Feisal's government at this time would likely hurt its moderate, comparatively pro-Western elements and imperil its position in the Baghdad pact.

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

WHEN the former President Truman told General Eisenhower at the time of the Potsdam conference that the U.S. presidency was his if he wanted it, the celebrated Ike was flabbergasted. Mr. Truman had in mind of course that if the generalissimo ran for the White House he would do so as a Democrat and not, as later he did, a Republican. The point was that Eisenhower's wartime popularity would carry him into office with ease.

As it did, twice over. Sometimes I wonder if he has since regretted his decision; for he seems so wholly out of his depth. On the other hand there is the human side; it would be strange if any man did not relish having his name on the long roll of U.S. presidents.

Even if he became haunted by the belief he is not measuring up to the job.

There is no evidence that Mr. Eisenhower thinks that way; but there is plenty of evidence that many others do. Perhaps most significant of all is that where once he was almost sacrosanct and beyond criticism, now dubiety about him is openly expressed.

Two prominent Washington columnists recently asserted that President Eisenhower is being isolated by his aides from reality. They keep unpleasant things away from him; they even act in his stead rather than "bother" him.

One startling disclosure is that his chief aide, off his own bat, even told the U.S. delegate at the UN how to vote on the Suez crisis, by-passing the state department and dismaying the U.S. allies.

It is nothing new for heads of state to be kept in ignorance by their subordinates, but this usually applies to dictatorships; not to democratic nations wherein comment and opinion is uncensored.

President Eisenhower cannot be unaware of the printed discussions caused by his apparent abdication of his responsibilities.

In his favor is the fact that because of his health he told his people that in his second term he would be only a part-time president. He was elected just the same.

To that extent he is absolved but his activities on the golf course, for example, suggest that he is leaving his job to other hands. No man can play as much as he does and keep a firm grip on his office.

Periodically he emerges to preach a sermon, but reiteration of the thesis that sin is bad is really not very helpful during these crucial days.

It is hard to dismiss the impression that he is out of his element. Few military men have ever been great successes as statesmen and Mr. Eisenhower is not proving to be one of them.

The tragedy is that in these dangerous days the West needs a strong, acute and vigorous leader, and because of U.S. physical power that leadership must come from the White House.

For all his fine qualities as an individual the famous Ike seems lost in his present role. And that causes deepening disquiet in Canada as well as across the line.

And, alas, he has three more years to go yet.

IN olden days, when Ottawa was the camping place of only one tribe, the Outaouais, the white soldiery in the settlements at Ville Marie and Quebec used to argue as to whether the rapier or the cutlass was the more deadly weapon.

Two of the outstanding duellists in Parliament this session remind one, of that old argument: Finance Minister Fleming the cutlass, and Liberal financial critic Jimmy Sinclair the rapier.

Fleming's strokes are powerful. They are intended to demolish the arguments of the opposition, and especially to turn the rapier-like thrusts of his main adversary, Sinclair on the other hand takes professional and personal satisfaction in pinning Fleming neatly to the wall—and watching him wiggle.

Fleming's technique can also be likened to a torrent of words intended to wash away and drown the opposition. That the opposition mocks his verbosity makes it no less effective. It completely inundated Sinclair in their first major encounter, so that what Fleming described as Sinclair's "sniping speech" and "hit-and-run effort" fell flat. The fact that Sinclair then, in accordance with tony-turvy Liberal strategy in this Parliament of minorities, voted for Fleming's motion did nothing to recoup his position. It was final proof that Sinclair had merely been making the best of a weak case.

The advantage of the rapier is its speed. CCFer Stanley Knowles was having heavy going with Fleming, trying to get the minister to admit what is quite apparent: that there will be no new Tory budget this fall. Fleming was talking all around the question. Sinclair leaped in, body bent forward as he thrust.

"Not a speech," he commanded.

The Packsack

Misdirected Sympathy

By GREGORY CLARK

AS we drove in the weekend stam-pede on the highway we came to a stretch where there were little bits of sticks, odds and ends of laths, trimmings of wood, scattered across the pavement. The second batch of these I drove through, I noted with some alarm that there were nails sticking up out of some of the fragments.

Every few hundred yards, we would come to another scattering of this debris, obviously trimmings and trash from some building operation. We slowed the car and dodged our way through the mess, seeing nails in more than half the pieces.

Two miles up, we came to a car pulled off on the road shoulder with a flat tire.

In the course of five miles, we encountered no fewer than ten of these random broadcasts of trash wood; and at last came upon a bur-lap bag half full of the junk. Obviously it had fallen off some vehicle ahead.

"It is either yes or no as to whether or not there is going to be a budget. No speech. Just yes or no."

A weighty pause punctuated "yes... or no." Five long seconds passed as the minister of finance wiggled on the point of Sinclair's verbal sword. Then Knowles released him with an anti-climactic, "This is one of the most evasive replies we have ever had." The House turned to other business.

When the opposition objects to "no budget," it uses the phrase in the parliamentary sense. A budget here is not the same as a household budget, which tries to equate income and spending. In Parliament the spending side of the government's activities is covered by the estimates. These are passed as a supply bill after detailed consideration by the committee of supply, and authorize the government to spend specified sums in indicated ways.

However, the budget is concerned only with the revenue side of the government's financial operations. The finance minister makes his budget speech in moving a motion that the House resolve itself into committee of ways and means. That motion precipitates a wide-open, eight-day budget debate.

This is what Fleming seems to be trying to avoid this fall. He told me June 25, in answer to a direct question, that he would be introducing a new budget this session. Now he has apparently changed his mind, and will ask the House to make tax changes by the expedient of passing amendments to individual tax acts. This procedure will deprive MPs of eight days in which traditionally they may debate the government's economic and fiscal policies and almost anything else to which they choose to turn their tongues.

It's a new variant of a well-known parliamentary situation: the government wants to save time and the opposition wants to talk.

Canadian Notebook

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

ONE of the greatest joys about travelling east is the disappearance of Mr. W. A. C. Bennett's purchase tax. Everything just drops comfortably by 5 per cent, and the knowing traveller waits until the train has left Field in order to have his lunch in the dining car. The bill is automatically down 5 per cent.

Maybe Mr. Bennett believes that the privilege of living in British Columbia is worth an extra 5 per cent, and he may be right; but there is a sense of joyous relief when prices as marked in a shop are the prices at which the goods are sold.

There is probably nothing more irritating than being taxed on food consumed in restaurants. Much of it is a tax on tourists; and the differentiation on food consumed and food purchased for eventual consumption is a minor mystery. It is certain that British Columbia could make more friends by eliminating the food tax than by any other single gesture.

The relief came when I paid my hotel bill in Calgary. The fact that there was no unexpected 5 per cent on food consumed was warming enough to withstand the snow and sleet which was whirling about outside, a not-too-gentle reminder that winter was not too far away. And so to Winnipeg, which an enthusiastic resident travelling on the train assured me was a viceless city full of pretty girls.

A little later I was informed that Winnipeg's chief of police has his own way of dealing with crime, which, as far as outsiders are concerned, consists of an anti-reception committee who politely inform the new arrival with known criminal propensities when the next train leaves and that he would be well advised to be on it, otherwise something might happen. I understand that the rather persuasive hint is taken, with the result that Winnipeg has managed to steer clear of serious crime and is most certainly not a resting place for criminals who find that their home town has become a little too warm for them.

There is no doubt that Winnipeg is a city of pretty girls. They sprout everywhere: in the streets, as elevator attendants, in shops and offices. Whether it is the prairie winds which blow so keenly down the wide, very wide, open streets or whether it is the considerable proportion of German and southern European stock in the community, I do not profess to know; but the result is charming.

I found myself wondering, too, whether this had anything to do with that other remarkable Winnipeg achievement—the ballet which acquired an almost international reputation and then got lost in a storm of internal dissension. One would suppose on the surface of things that Winnipeg was the very last place in the world to expect a ballet to emerge, still less a ballet of such dignity and proportions that it became a force to be recognized in the ballet world. The average citizen — that is, several people I spoke to — was immensely proud of the ballet even though three out of five admitted that they had not seen them perform.

Seemingly it was just one of those things which happen when a strong personality gets an idea and the energy to put it into effect and the persuasion to make people support it. It becomes a tragedy, as it so obviously has in Winnipeg, when internal troubles consume the idea, with no one seemingly quite certain what is going to happen—whether it will survive or perish. There is obvious hope that it will rise Phoenix-like from the discord and the literal flames which consumed its scenery, properties and wardrobe — but also a certain amount of apathy from former supporters. It could be that I was talking with the wrong side but obviously the wounds will be hard to heal.

If ballet is to succeed in Winnipeg it is pretty obvious that it cannot do so without all the support it can get. But the cultural urge was noted too in the performances of the symphony orchestra, this year seemingly without its own conductor, and the fact that there was a cinema showing films in their original German and seemingly doing very good business. Even in London, which must have a German population vastly greater than Winnipeg's, it is necessary to add English subtitles to explain the dialogue.

I shall, however, remember Winnipeg as a city of gusty sunshine—real spaciousness and a city essentially itself. It cannot be typed. It has some of the brand of frontier town, something of a cultural veneer which is spontaneous rather than imposed, a sense of pride and wealth but little pockets of tawdry poverty which seem to be out-of-keeping. It is a big masculine town—maybe that is why it is so popular with the pretty girls, who always seem so bright, fresh-complexioned and carefree.

And let it be repeated — viceless, and very friendly.

Law Reforms

Why not have law appreciation features for 1958? The Bar association probably have plans, but reference here is to laymen participation.

No doubt Premier Bennett has various booklets, etc., in mind for the government to distribute to remind us all of what we have in British Columbia in this regard.

It is not at all beyond the intelligent layman to understand; indeed some of the most vital law reforms were due to laymen. In this connection might one respectfully suggest that the government distinguish 1958 by introducing some law reforms? Such as: without the degradation of pauper pleading, devise some way to provide for the recording of trial testimony in civil cases so that copies can be readily obtained at very nominal or at no cost to litigants. Subsidize or in some other way assist appellants to get appeal books at very nominal expense.

I have heard that lawyers sadly lament that many of those who should appeal are quite unable to do so just because of the huge disbursements required to get the necessary material before the appeal court.

Unfortunately, the jury in civil cases is growing more rare in B.C., only because of the expense. The government could devise some method by which a jury in all civil cases can be obtained by those who want it without cost to the litigants.

Labor Unrest

Forty or 50 years ago, here in Canada, any man who expected to live by toil, certainly would never relinquish a job with impunity, in the face of winter, and then expect the government or others to come to his relief.

Government statistics, Tim Buck and others, all draw attention to unemployment being on the increase, but every man engaged in industry is a factor in helping to provide more employment for others.

A few men can, however, by establishing a picket line discourage or stop others from working; and as one looks at France and its problems, a general strike has been in effect there in protest against increased costs of living, but still the workers were demanding higher wages.

Sputnik revolving around this globe about every 90 minutes does not concern me half as much as this labor unrest and demands for more. Something is wrong in our mentality when a leader like Walter Reuther would not accept stock in the Ford Motor concern at 50 per cent of its market value, which happened about June, 1955.

For the children's sake, I wish some of us would wake up before it is too late.

'Insult to Britons'

In your issue of Oct. 25, there is a news item titled, "U.K. Plans B.C. Fair Exhibit" which goes on to say: "The United Kingdom has become the first foreign government to agree to participate in next year's B.C. International Trade Fair, etc. . . ."

Your reference to the United Kingdom as a "foreign" government is an insult not only to Her Majesty the Queen and the United Kingdom, but also to all Canadians of British origin, so many of whom have made such an outstanding contribution to the public life of this country, its economic development along with social and moral progress.

I wonder what Canadians would think and say if the U.K. referred to Canada as a foreign government; such a designation would be resented and rightly so.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. into any action that might further Moscow's propaganda campaign. Cmdr. Alan Noble, Britain's minister of state, spoke as the assembly renewed debate on the Turkish-Syrian border dispute following a weekend recess during which Turkey voted in a general election.

Monday—the day following the vote—was the date mentioned earlier by Syria and Russia as the likely one for a Turkish attack across her Syrian frontier in the south, but the day passed without incident.

Noble maintained in his assembly speech that Saudi Arabia has not withdrawn her offer to mediate the border dispute, despite Syrian and Egyptian reports that King Saud has officially dropped his good offices attempt. American delegation sources also said they had received no official word of any such abandonment.

'Plot' Bared

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—The Syrian foreign ministry expressed belief Monday that Turkey might attack Syria during NATO exercises of United States, British and Turkish forces scheduled to start Thursday. It warned other NATO nations not to be tricked into a Turkish plot.

The foreign ministry statements were sent to NATO members in notes saying Turkey might attack in the belief she will get NATO support and protection during "possible aggressive operations."

If this happens, the notes said, NATO forces would be "a tool to facilitate the aggression."

Guilty Plea Stops Trial

A change of plea in city police court yesterday cut short a trial for impaired driving.

Nelson Robert Fleming, 163 Olive, had been charged following a two-car collision on Oct. 21, at Yates and Blanshard. He pleaded not guilty, and trial was set for yesterday.

After hearing testimony of officers who attended the accident, Fleming told Magistrate Henry C. Hall he wished to change his plea to guilty.

He was fined $250, and his driver's licence suspended.

In a special sitting of Saanich police court Edward Martin

Foster, 205 Island Highway, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

Foster was also fined $250, and remanded to Oct. 31 for a probation report for disposition of his driver's licence.

In Colwood court Friday John Crawford of Victoria was fined $50 and $3 costs for shooting a deer, contrary to the Game Act.

Two men were fined for trespassing when they appeared in Sidney police court.

Wayne Kinghorn and Torolo Konrad Johansen, both of Patricia Bay, were fined $10 and costs each.

Per Capita Sales High Here

Tourists Keep Us Fat

How can Victoria claim the highest figure in annual retail sales per capita in comparison with Vancouver, the average for B.C., and the national average? It certainly isn't the result of higher average wages in the capital city. A recent issue of "Canadian Business" quotes Victoria's wage level as 7½ per cent below the national average.

The answer, deduces the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, is the long underestimated strength of the tourist trade to the city's economy.

$2,299 IN SALES

The article shows that for each person living in Victoria, $2,299 in retail sales were rung up on cash registers in 1956.

Vancouver's per capita figure for the same period was $1,884, the province's was $1,114, and the nation's, $876.

Is it possible, asks this month's Chamber of Commerce "Report" after perusal of the article, that the tourist factor alone accounts for the city enjoying twice the retail sales per capita compared with the whole province and almost three times that of all Canada?

The "Report's" clue to the value of tourism was found in additional figures supplied by the article, pointing out that an extremely high concentration of the city's working force is employed in service occupations—24 per cent in Victoria compared with only 9 per cent in Vancouver.

"A large part of those engaged in service occupations is certainly employed in stores and shops and in services such as hotels and restaurants which serve visitors as well as our own residents," the "Report" states.

Employment of many of these people, the chamber says, in the Canadian Business article is a city with a calm, relaxed effect is directly attributable to the extra large per-capita sales created by our visitors.

"Never before have we had so clear a picture of the importance of our tourist business to Victoria," the "Report" concludes.

"It is so large that it doubles retail sales and provides our largest single source of employment."

STEPPED-UP PUBLICITY

On the basis of this "clear picture" of Victoria's tourist industry, the "Report" calls for a stepped-up publicity program, better convention facilities and ferry service, pepped-up politicking for tourist-attractive British imports in increased volume and at reduced tariffs and taxes.

And more and more emphasis on hospitality—making Victoria the "friendliest city ever visited."

By getting the tourist bandwagon moving in high gear, the chamber hopes to prove wrong

Kitimat Pipeline Choice

The chances that British Columbia will have a second oil pipeline are still very much alive according to a Calgary oil industry spokesman.

Act Oils Ltd., the B.C. company which earlier this year filed an application for a line to run from the Peace River area to the coast has however changed its proposed route.

As was indicated in the Daily Colonist last month, the suggested Pacific terminal has been changed from Bella Coola to Kitimat.

The line would be about 478 miles long.

It is estimated that deliveries could be made at the coast at cheaper rates than the existing Trans-Mountain pipeline from the Edmonton area to Vancouver because of the more direct and less complicated route.

This would not mean, however, that the line would be running in opposition with Trans-Mountain since it is unlikely that construction would be completed before Trans-Mountain.

Flax offerings were in the form of commission house selling and support came from American houses. Prices were irregular.

Oats and barley had some export interest and trade reports indicated small sales of both grains to the United Kingdom. Trade was quiet and most support came from domestic sources.

Rye was quiet in local trade and prices were irregular. Overnight loadings of Canadian wheat included: United Kingdom 400,000, West Germany 150,000, Ecuador 110,000, The Netherlands 30,000, Belgium and Venezuela small quantities.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were all done 1/4 from Friday.

he delivered to markets on the Canadian and U.S. west coast via tanker.

The spokesman said there is also a possibility of a 35,000-barrel-a-day refinery being constructed at Kitimat.

Reserves of crude oil in the Peace River district are the chief reason construction of the proposed line may be delayed by as much as six months to two years, he added. It is generally felt that oil is there and it is only a matter of time until the markets will be sought.

Cost of the line has not yet been disclosed. Should the B.C. government approve the pipeline and reserves warrant its construction, a pipeline company would be the holder of the largest reserves at the point of origin of the line and likely controlling the company.

The first executive development seminar held in B.C. by the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Canada will take place in Victoria in January, society president M. C. Coutts said.

The seminar is designed to "provide a broad view of the administration and policy-making functions of business, particularly for those who have emerged at the middle-management level."

Higher Interest Rate
Makes Strong Appeal

By HARRY WOODS
Colonist Business Editor

It is too early to tell for sure, but it looks as if more Canada savings bonds are going to be bought this year on the payroll deduction plan than ever before on Vancouver Island.

Bill Munro, who is in charge of the payroll deduction organization reports that with less than half of the campaign reporting more than $1,200,000 worth of bonds have been ordered. This compares with a total of $2,049,250 last year.

Eight firms have already gone over last year's top. They are Fairley Aviation, Moore Whittington, Comox Logging and Railway, MacMillan and Bloedel Somass Division, MacMillan and Bloedel APL Division, Western Forest Industries, Standard Furniture and New Method Laundry. Of these only Fairley has completed its returns.

Mr. Munro says that while odd soft spots are being encountered, such as in the plywood industry, the general level of purchasing is higher than ever.

The high rate of interest paid on the bond—4.46 per cent if held to maturity—is making a strong appeal.

RUNNING IT CLOSE

Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. established a dividend rate of $1 a year when it offered a year ago a small number of its shares to the Canadian public.

The question now is whether this subsidiary of the big U.S. pulp and paper firm will decide to continue the rate.

Third quarter report of Crown Zellerbach Canada shows that it is going to be tough and go with its earnings of $1 dividend this year.

With one quarter to go the earnings are about 76 cents a common share.

However P. T. Sinclair, president, raised some hopes for B.C.'s wobbly major industry. He says the profit picture improved in the third quarter owing to increased sales of kraft pulp and newsprint and seasonal increases in sales of corrugated boxes and lumber demand on the Prairies.

New profit for nine months was $5,712,875 against $7,577,275 for the corresponding period of 1956.

Sales were up 5.6 per cent on the previous year, but net income was 24.6 per cent lower.

Increased wages will cost the company $1,300,000 in a full year while so far this year the exchange penalty on U.S. sales was $1,200,000 against $409,800 answers. Low cost housing is badly needed in some parts of the country if adequate labor force is to be available for many development projects. Also, the government feels that the construction industry, on which so many jobs depend, needs this winter a shot in the arm.

TRUST RAISES RATE

Although some borrowings are undoubtedly getting easier, the trend is still upwards in interest rates on savings accounts.

National Trust announces it is adding another quarter of one per cent to the amount it will pay on its savings accounts as from Nov. 1. The new rate is 3½ per cent.

The higher interest rate by the National Trust is designed no doubt to keep them in line with the new more generous offering by the Canadian government for its 12th series Canada Savings Bonds. While these pay only 3¼ per cent for the first two years, they give 4½ per cent for the next 11 years of their existence.

The move by the National Trust may also have some repercussions among the chartered banks.

These are currently paying 2½ per cent on savings accounts, and the gap of three-quarters of one per cent existing between them and the National Trust rate, might induce the banks to make a similar jump so that they would be paying 3 per cent.

As Nov. 1 is the fiscal year-end for the banks, an announcement, if it is coming at all, could be in order this week.

BUILT ON INFLATION

In these days a banker who doesn't see inflation as an enemy of sorts, is a rarity.

But he does exist. James Stewart, chairman of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, visiting Victoria this weekend said

Canada's great growth of the past decade had been built on a style of inflation.

He did not want to see our dollar weakened by the lowering of U.S. investments in this country, or by reduction of imports.

His personal view was against too much government control of the economy, and in favor of freedom of enterprise.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By Red Smith

TOKYO—It was a cold, dirty day and the teeming streets were greasy with rain. The taxi crossed one river after another, passed a sign reading "Lovable Brassiere Co. of Japan" and arrived after about an hour at the Nakayama Race Course. It was after one p.m., more than two hours since the start of the eleven race program, and still horse players by the thousands trudged through sucking mud toward the mighty triple-decked grandstand.

They were blond brothers and sisters to the horse players at Jamaica or Fairmount Park or Lincoln Downs—horse players in modern dress and rubber boots, lady horse players wearing kimono and geta (those wooden platform sandals set on tall mud cleats) and every other female packed an infant hung up between her shoulder blades in a sort of quiver or papoose-sling called an obii. At the grandstand gate (general admission fifty yen, or about 14 cents) an ancient doll huddled under an umbrella selling form sheets covered with koshier lettering. Silently uncomplaining on her bent withers rode a new grandchild.

Nobody seemed to mind the mean, persistent drizzle. It was the day of the annual Grand National Steeplechase, two and nine-sixteenths miles over ten low brush fences with a gross value of 2,200,000 yen, about $6,200 with $3,700 to the winner.

Packed into the quarter-mile sweep of stands and thronged on the flagstone "lawn" were at least 45,000 plungers come to bet on a fairly confusing quintela where you pick two horses to run first and second and then on you if they finish second and first. There are also mutual windows for tancho, straight win bets, and fukusho, place wagers, but rensho, or show, gets most of the business. The takeout is 25 per cent, split near the middle by track and government, and there's no minimum payoff to create minus pools. If things get really rough you get your original bet back less 10 per cent.

Just East of Monmouth

As you enter, the great glassed-in facade suggests an oversized Monmouth Park. The paddock and walking ring are just inside the gate, flanked by arched bridges for spectators. From there the horses go underground through a tunnel, emerging from a hole in the infield. It's a mile track of soggy, scarred turf with a dirt training track just inside and schooling courses for jumpers all over the infield. Where space allows there are shrubs and dwarfed pines, trained into squat, symmetrical shapes by the landscaper's art of "bonsai."

A Japanese Navy band played "The Washington and Lee Swing" while the field for the Grand National paraded. There were six starters including last year's winner, a four-year-old colt named Duroho that had tailed off this year and was carrying only 130 pounds against 139 for the top-weighted Daini Katsufuji, a seven-year-old from the South. Favorite was a tough mare of five named Yamakabuto. The Grand National course is patterned after the large intestine. Starting with a big up-sloping fishhook run clockwise, the field makes a figure eight, then romps off across the backstretch again for one great big oval to the finish. Five times in the race the horses disappeared into a deep gully. Most of them reappear. The second time past the stands, Kuroshio unseated his rider going over the tallest fence. The kid clung to the reins trying to stay on, bumped on the ground for a couple of strides before he let go. He got up immediately and stood with flaps on hips, a picture of futile rage, staring after the field until it dipped out of sight.

The Stymie of Old Japan

The mare Yamakabuto won by six big lengths and paid a whopping one to two. As the riderless Kuroshio approached the finish, a squad of stooges stretched a wide white tape across the track and flapped it up and down, scaring the loose horse into a corner where he was recaptured.

The Navy band played the Triumphant March from "Aida" while a fringed silk scarf, elaborately embroidered, was hung over the winner's withers and two grooms paraded her.

The Grand National was the seventh race on the card but the real big one of the day was the tenth, the Sakkei Cup All Comers Handicap for three-year-olds and up at a mile and a quarter.

This was like a meeting of Round Table, Bold Ruler and Gallant Man, for the field of eight included the 1956 Japan Derby Winner, Hakuchikara, the horse that took second in the Derby, Kitano-o, and Hekiraku, which finished third.

There was also a remarkable little horse named Seiyu. Japan's major league tracks have two breeds of horses, Arabs and thoroughbreds, and ordinarily they are segregated, each racing against his own kind. However, after Seiyu, an Arab, won twenty-two races in a row he was allowed to move up among the thoroughbreds and here he was, a three-year-old against older steeds in a cup race worth $2,285 to the winner.

Handicappers Across the Sea

The Arab bounced out in front and stretched his lead to ten lengths. Behind him were some of the best horses in Japan and the best jockeys—a kid named Ebino who rates like Arcaro; Nehira Yu, the Shoemaker of his land; Yasuda, Willie Hartack's opposite number, and the oriental Ted Atkinson, Takahashi.

In the long uphill homestretch, Kitano-o came on to win. This is a four-year-old whose owner wanted to send him to the Washington, D.C. International at Laurel next month but couldn't get an invitation. Funny thing, in a lesser race there was a horse that did get invited to the Laurel International but couldn't make it. This was Dai Sekai-O, a smart three-year-old. There was a funny thing about his race, which was won handsomely by a filly named World Queen. In the "Keisaku News," which is the Armstrong's scratch sheet of Japan, the comment on World Queen read "impossible to win."

Those inscrutable orientals. Set 'em to handicapping horses, and they're just like us.

Calgary Manager Accused Of 'Slugging' Own Player

CALGARY (CP)—Gordon Hunter, sports editor of the Herald, said yesterday in a story from Winnipeg that Bob Masterson, general manager of Calgary Stampede, "slugged" one of his own players after Saturday's Western Interprovincial Football Union game in Regina.

Hunter said the incident occurred on one of two special railway cars used by the Stampede just before the train left Regina for Winnipeg.

Masterson "slugged" half-back Harvey Wylie on the mouth, cutting him and puffing up the side of his face.

He quotes Wylie as saying:

"I was putting my coat into my berth when Masterson came down the aisle. He shoved me and I shoved him back and then he said 'don't shove me' and then hit me on the mouth. Somebody grabbed me from behind and then Masterson went on down the car to his compartment."

Asked by Hunter if there was any reason for the attack, Wylie replied he felt positive it had something to do with the Saturday game in which Saskatchewan Roughriders trounced Calgary, 32-14.

DROPPED PUNT

"I guess he was mad at me for dropping that punt," Wylie is reported to have said. "I guess as long as he's with the club I won't be on it."

The punt was dropped in the second quarter and it set up Bobby Marlow's first of three touchdowns.

Hunter said he asked Masterson about the incident Sunday in Winnipeg.

Masterson said he had hit Wylie but that at the time he didn't know who he was striking.

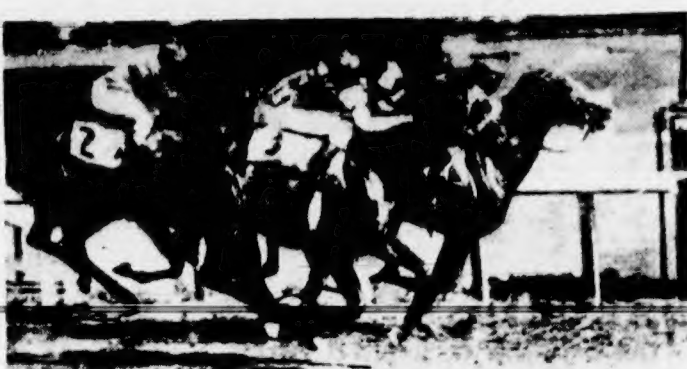

"I was walking down the aisle with a suitcase in each hand and when I passed a group of players one of them gave me a hard elbow in the ribs. Maybe he was horseplay, but I was in no mood for horseplay after the ball game."

"I dropped one bag and swung around instinctively and hammered out with a backhand and hit somebody. I didn't even know it was Wylie. Certainly it has nothing to do with Harvey personally."

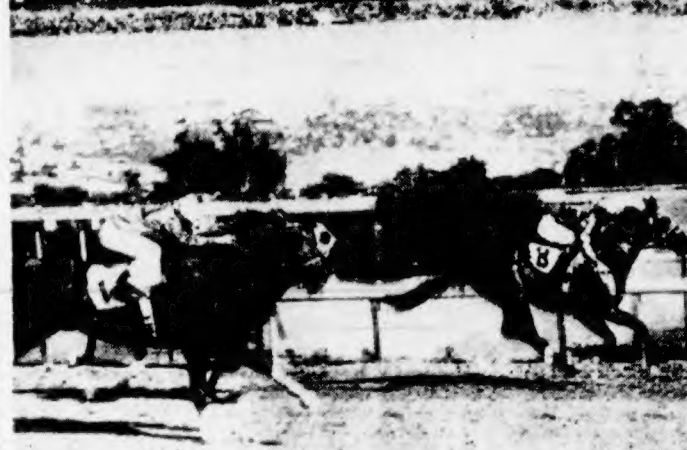

The general manager added that it had nothing to do with

BRAVES SACK COACHES: Milwaukee Braves caused a bit of a surprise over the weekend by firing three of the four coaches who helped manager Fred Haney win the National League championship and world series. Venture Cadets Gain At Expense of Bays

Defending champion HMCS Venture moved into second place in the Victoria Junior Canadian Football League Sunday afternoon by drubbing winless Oak Bay, 22-6, at Carnarvon Park.

In Sunday's other scheduled game, Royal Road cadets were forced to default for the second straight week because of the "flu," this time to the pace-setting Mayo Timbermen.

Timbermen, who top the four-team circuit with five victories against one defeat, travel to meet Meralomas for the provincial championship. Meralomas are the defending B.C. champions, beating the Venture team last season.

Oak Bay turned in its top performance of the season against Venture and held its own in yards gained and first downs. But the winners intercepted three passes and recovered two fumbles to halt Oak Bay threats.

Fullback Niles Floren scored two touchdowns and a single and Stan Brygadyr picked up a touchdown. Venture's other points came on a safety touch and a convert by Jim Bell. Rigstad picked up the Oak Bay touchdown on a 15-yard pass from Pete Napper.

Winnipeg Helps James To New Scoring Record

WINNIPEG—Winnipeg Blue Bombers had little else to do last night but to help Gerry James reach his goal of the Western Interprovincial Football Union scoring championship.

James not only made it almost certain things in the 30-13 romp over Calgary Stampede, but he set a new record in the process. The husky Canadian back scored his 16th touchdown of the season, booted his fourth field goal in five attempts and tacked on his first three conversions.

The 12 points boosted his total for the season to 112, two more than the old record set by Bob Shaw, import end for the Stamps in 1952.

James now has a 16-point lead on Johnny Bright and a 17-point margin on Joe Mobra. With one game left for each of the trio it's unlikely that James can be caught.

A preview of the league semi-final, which opens here on Nov. 9, the game, meaningless as far as the standings were concerned, proved that the Bombers are almost a sure thing to Edmonton Eskimos. Second game of the two-game, total point series is at Calgary on Nov. 11. First game of the best-of-three final will be at the home of the semi-final winner on Nov. 16. Second game will be at Edmonton on Nov. 20 and the third, if needed, at Edmonton on Nov. 23.

LITTLE TO FEAR
The 12,855 fans saw little to fear from the Stampede in the semi-finals. Bombers, led by James, Denis Mendyk, Nick Miller and Leo Lewis, who scored two touchdowns, didn't even appear to miss Kenny Ploen, their sensational freshman quarterback.

Ploen suffered a pulled muscle in the first quarter and Barry Roseborough, a seldom-used Canadian substitute, had to guide the club the rest of the way.

Roseborough did himself proud. He called the plays as the Bombers got four touchdowns and a field goal and piled up 25 first downs. The winners gained 259 yards—rushing, lacked on 203 yards in the air with 11 completions out of 17 pass attempts.

Calgary, quarterbacked by Ron Clunkscale, had 15 first downs and made 204 yards rushing and 100 passing. Clunkscale scored both of the Calgary touchdowns.

Cougars Still Winless
Biggest news from the Western Hockey League over the weekend was the announcement that centre Guyle Fielder is to rejoin Seattle Americans. That it is bound to have a big effect on what is to happen in the Western Division is something every hockey fan well knows.

Fielder set a new professional hockey scoring record last season with 33 goals and 80 assists for a phenomenal 122 points from 69 games. He was selected to the all-star club for the second time and was generally considered the outstanding player in minor professional hockey.

His performance earned him his third National Hockey League contract.

In any event, he'll do in the WHL, where he has scored 451 points in 334 games and won almost every honor possible—rookie of the season, most valuable player, two all-star teams, two scoring championships. He holds three league records and shares a fourth.

Fielder will likely be reunited with wingers Ray Kinasevich and Val Fonteyne. Scourge of WHL goals, the trio scored 161 goals and was credited with 167 assists last season.

Other important WHL news made over the weekend was the announcement that the team player limit had been increased from 14 to 15 players, including goalkeepers, and that tonight's scheduled game between Victoria Cougars and Canucks at Vancouver had been postponed.

Action was taken Sunday night by league-president Al Leader, who watched the "flurried" Cougars lose to the Americans, 5-2.

Cougars had to play the game with only 11 players, and five of them would have been better off in bed. Sidelined by the "flu" were Gordie Wilson, Gordie Matheson, Harry Leach and Gordie Haworth. Playing with it were coach Colin Kilburn, Ed Dorohoy, Nelson Bulloch, Doug Macauley and Blinky Boyce.

They were all at home yesterday trying to get over it in time for their Saturday night engagement with the Canucks at Memorial Arena.

Sunday's game at Seattle was practically a carbon copy of all of the Cougars' recent efforts. They played well in the first period but dropped behind, dropped out of it altogether in the second period, then came on in the third in a futile effort to get close.

Morabito Didn't Live to See His Beloved '49ers Triumph to put his club up for sale and urged to stay away from the games, Morabito paid no heed to his doctors. On Sunday he suffered a heart attack during the second quarter of the game between the 49ers and Chicago Bears at San Francisco and died shortly after he had been admitted to hospital. He was only 47.

Morabito didn't live to see his club come from behind to beat the Bears, 21-17. Two pass interceptions were turned into as many touchdowns as the San Francisco club won its fourth straight to take the lead in the powerful Western Division.

Baltimore Colts and Detroit Lions both dropped back. The Colts lost, 24-21, to Green Bay Packers in a game with a spectacular finish while the Lions got the Rams on the rebound at Los Angeles and were smothered, 35-17.

Colts took a 14-0 lead into the last quarter but Paul Hornung, rookie from Notre Dame, scored two touchdowns and Fred Cone kicked a field goal to put Green Bay ahead, 17-14, with less than two minutes left.

Quarterback John Unitas then came through with his second touchdown pass of the game, and his 14th in five games this season, to regain the lead for the Colts with about 40 seconds left.

SENSATIONAL FINISH
But it wasn't enough for the Packers. They took the kick-off back to Baltimore's 25-yard line, scored on the next play as quarterback Babe Parilli and end Billy Howton combined for a 75-yard pass-run scoring play. There were only 29 seconds left.

Washington Redskins, led by their starry rookies, pushed Cleveland Browns back into the lead in the Eastern Division by upsetting New York Giants, 31-14. The Browns got by the Chicago Cardinals, 17-7.

Pittsburgh Steelers, an improved club under Buddy Parker, former Detroit coach, made news by holding Philadelphia Eagles to only 70 yards, all on the ground. The Eagles couldn't pick up a yard in the air as they were blanked, 6-0, in a battle of rugged defenses.

Only score was a second-quarter touchdown, a pass from quarterback Earl Morrall to Ray Mathews.

Oak Bay Teams Lose School Rugby Starts
Postponed a week because of the current outbreak of "flu," the inter-high school junior rugby league opening took place yesterday with both Oak Bay entries going down to defeat.

Victoria High broke a 3-3 deadlock and went on to a 9-3 win over Oak Bay White at Carnarvon Park, while Esquimalt scored all its points in the second half for an 8-0 win over Oak Bay Greens at the Esquimalt grounds.

At Esquimalt, Barry Neff broke the scoreless deadlock early in the second half, then Barry Irwin scored a try that was converted by Brian Barker.

Gary Bowen scored a try and booted a penalty kick for Victoria High's margin of victory. John Dobracky also crossed the line for the winners while Pete Rankin scored a first-half try for the Bays.

Busy Little Gump Proves Big Target; Helps Rangers End Canadiens' Streak

Lorne Worsey, a spectacular little goalkeeper who came to the National Hockey League after prepping in the Western Hockey League, is one of the biggest, and best, reasons New York Rangers are more than holding their own this season.

Perhaps the reason that got what proved to be the win for the Rangers last night when he played a power play goal off. He's on the move all the time but opposing forwards are finding it a lot harder to score on him than shoot at as Rangers ended Canadiens' streak.

Indians May Get Help

The Squamish Indian Reserve where two children died in a fire last week may come under protection of the View Royal fire department.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer George last week lost two children as well as their home through fire directly attributed to a defective partition to take over fire prevention and suppression duties on the reserve.

Chief Beasley repeated last night he had written four letters but did not want to get into a controversy.

Mr. Boys said "fire inspections are usually the responsibility of the fire department."

Chief Beasley anticipated soon after that four times he had written Mr. Boys, directing attention to the lack of fire in View Royal fire chief A. E. Ames, but received no answer.

Mr. Boys denied this, but was prepared for his answer.

After-Hours Sales Charges Dropped

Charges of after-hours sales laid against a number of Saanich merchants, were withdrawn in Saanich police court Thursday. All had been charged with selling illegally on the Saanich Monday-holiday.

Cases will proceed, however, against other merchants charged with selling illegally on Sunday.

Last week the Saanich bylaw covering after-hours sales was amended and passed in its new form by Saanich council.

Group Seeking Place to Park

A group of Victoria business men took the first step yesterday toward possible formation of a downtown off street parking organization similar to Vancouver's.

Thirty business men called together by Victor Clarke partly as the result of a suggestion from Mayor Percy Scurrah, chose a steering committee to recommend the next step.

Named to the committee were William Gilmour, Mr. Clarke, A. E. McMullen, Kenneth Murphy, F. N. Cabellou and H. R. Halls and a news paper publisher will be added.

William Clark, who acted as chairman of the meeting said that "as it is now, you only have to look up the street to find facilities completely jammed, and he added 3,000 additional cars a year were travelling city streets.

Planning director Brahm Wiseman of the Capital Region Planning Board advised the group that to be successful a program of providing off street parking must be comprehensive, well thought out and worked out in conjunction with local government.

Songhees' 'Fire Traps'

'Nothing to Do with Us'

Burglar's Motive Crystal Clear

It's illegal, but in a way it's understandable.

James T. Bruce, principal of Burnside School, reported to city police yesterday that the school had been broken into during the weekend. Entry was gained through a canopy window.

Only one thing was missing: the strap.

REEVE WURTELE

Wurtele Adamant

Esquimalt municipality has no responsibility for providing fire protection for the fire traps on the Songhees Indian Reserve, Reeve A. C. Wurtele said last night.

He was replying to a query by Coun. Walter Houser who was referring to the fire which burned two children to death last week.

"I would hate to see this municipality take over the responsibility for this reserve," Wurtele said. "It is full of old unpainted houses, day after day, without electricity and using these old dangerous lamps."

"You just have to put a match to them and they are gone," he added.

"What are we going to do with them?" asked Coun. Houser.

"We can go and assist," the reeve said.

"It is up to the department of Indian Affairs," Coun. W. E. A. Barclay stated.

View Royal fire department attended last week's blaze, but did not remove the debris.

Top Artists Coming?

Victoria Day

Let Club Do It!

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce should take over Victoria Day celebrations, Coun. W. E. A. Barclay told Esquimalt council last night.

Mr. Barclay, who is council's representative on the Greater Victoria Centennial Celebrations Association, explained that the Jaycees had rented the Memorial Arena for their exhibition to May 17, leaving it for the association on May 19.

CARRY ON

Coun. J. E. Carey said the association should carry on with organizing the celebrations.

"I don't think he knows what he is talking about," said Coun. Barclay.

Coun. Carey stated that he was a former member of the association.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele asked Coun. Barclay to find out whether the association wanted to turn over the celebrations to the Jaycees.

WITHDRAWALS

Coun. Barclay withdrew a motion that council recommend the celebration be handed to the Jaycees, and the issue was left in abeyance for the association's recommendation.

Main details of Greater Victoria's Victoria Day celebrations were arranged last night at a meeting between the association and Jaycees.

The May Queen, chosen by the Jaycees, will be crowned May 18 after her arrival in the Inner Harbor in the reconstructed "Commodore."

World-famous artists—Dave Brubeck, Glenn Gould, Marcel Marceau, Count Basie, Maureen Forrester and George London—may be brought to Victoria next year as part of the Greater Victoria centennial celebrations.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, chairman of the Greater Victoria Centennial Celebrations Committee discussed the possibility of booking a number of artists with a Vancouver agent yesterday morning.

REPORT MONDAY

He will report on the discussion to a meeting of the committee to be held Monday.

Brubeck and Count Basie are band leaders, Marceau is a pantomime, Miss Forrester is a contralto and Mr. London is a bass baritone.

Other artists who would be available include the Oscar Peterson trio, tenor Jon Vickers and duettists Vronsky and Babin.

Ald. Edgelow also spent some time yesterday morning with Lawrence Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, and Cmdr. Harry Porter, a navy liaison officer, discussing the Royal Canadian Navy's part in centennial activities in Victoria.

No Chances with Red Tide

B.C. Closes Down Shellfish Industry

British Columbia's clam and oyster business was shut down yesterday.

Shellfish infection from a species of plankton forming what fishermen call a "red tide" in the Courtenay area was given as the reason by Dr. G. F. Amyot, provincial deputy health minister.

The shutdown may only last a week or two—and in any case "shouldn't be too long," he said.

Victoria restaurants which serve seafoods did not appear unduly worried about the order.

Dr. Amyot issued a "play it safe" announcement after an emergency meeting of the Pacific Coast Shellfish Committee, formed of federal and provincial health and federal fisheries officials. The committee, established after a similar outbreak on the west coast of the Island in 1942, was hastily revived to discuss the current threat.

Eighteen persons in the area suffered poisoning, mostly evident in a form of paralysis, after eating clams and mussels.

The committee's announcement, released by Dr. Amyot, said the situation was "apparently confined mostly to a small area on the east coast of Vancouver Island."

However, the red tide has also been sighted on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

"However, as there is a possibility other areas may be involved, it is suggested that the taking, handling and marketing of all oysters and clams in British Columbia waters be controlled until further notice," the statement added.

The provincial government was therefore ordering the oyster business closed "until sampling and laboratory analysis of all areas can be completed."

Saanich Reins Tight

Saanich will keep its tight rein on all but "priority" local improvement projects in the immediate future.

But council finance committee last night heard some what encouraging words about the future of the currently unappealing municipal bond market.

Harry Means of A. F. Ames Co. told the committee he believed the municipal bond market will improve "within the next 12 months."

But until then the committee was advised to continue marketing through the agent rather than risk delays and further losses by calling for tenders.

Committee agreed to recommend to council that the "sell as-we-require" system of marketing the bonds, started almost a year ago, be continued.

In a special session, council last night passed bylaws for various local improvement debenture sales amounting to $17,440.

Finance committee also approved a new tax payment schedule, increasing discounts and limiting them to payments between January and May only, not through August as in previous years.

Recommended placing $40,000 in a special fund for installment in a special fund for new Jubilee Hospital wing and $5,000 for restoring Grainger School.

Police Get Their Asian Flu Vaccine

The girls are in command here, giving Esquimalt policemen Gordon Jenkins the needle at Esquimalt police station. Student nurse Mabel McNab of Royal Jubilee and public health nurse Diane McLaren are among those dispensing Asian flu vaccine to 2,000

'Rigid' Sputnik TV Repeater Could Spread Things All Over

If an artificial satellite like Sputnik could be sent up 22,500 miles, it could "sit in the sky right above a given point" on the earth and could be used as a television repeater station that would broadcast to most of a hemisphere, a Victoria astronomer said yesterday.

Dr. Andrew McKellar, speaking to the Gyre Club, said that at that height, the orbiting satellite the long controversy over the constitution of the atmosphere of Mars.

Larger satellites, Dr. McKellar said, could be equipped to observe the earth, study the cloud pattern and send information on it, and the improvement in meteorology would be "amazing."

He also said that the launching of Sputnik could be considered the first step to space travel. "Certainly there will be many difficulties particularly human but it would be very pessimistic to say they won't be overcome. I feel quite sure that maybe in a year or two a rocket, not manned, will at least strike the moon, possibly circumnavigate the moon."

The member for Hamilton West, Canada's first woman cabinet minister, urged women's institutes to extend their spirit of neighborliness to newcomers and help them understand Canadian life.

SUMMERLAND WINS

The Summerland B.C. WI placed second in the historical competition.

The Summerland group won first place in the handicrafts section with its 10 handicrafts entries. Mrs. Gordon Ritchie of Summerland received the trophy for the institute.

Pictured above with her 18-month-old sister, Shelley Pamela, is Monica Lesley, five-and-a-half-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne B. Saxon of Victoria and Goose Bay, Labrador, who was christened recently in St. Mary's Anglican Church, Regina, with the Rev. Henry Ellis officiating. The children are the granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Saxon, Regina, and Mrs. Newton, Victoria, and the late Mr. G. W. Saxon. Godparents were Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Saxon and Miss J. W. Riddick, for whom Miss Merle Leslie stood proxy. Following the ceremony a tea was held at the home of the paternal grandparents where the refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth made by the bride's great grandmother, Mrs. L. J. Saxon. Among the guests were the maternal grandmother, Mrs. G. W. Newton, and the children's great-grandmother, Mrs. G. J. Lester of Liberty, Sask. Mrs. Saxon and her children are at present visiting her husband's parents in Regina en route to Goose Bay where Mr. Saxon is stationed with the RCAF. (Photo by West, Regina)

Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Thompson To Reside in Edmonton

An exquisite wedding gown of imported silk brocade in pristine white, complemented the dark hair of Margaret Lettice Mary Burnett when she spoke her vows to P. E. Thompson. The bride's gown was six feet long and was given in marriage by A. H. B. Burnett, who had created a coronal for the bride. The bride's hair was styled in a classic fashion, and she wore a matching veil. The ceremony was held in a grand hall, and the atmosphere was one of joy and celebration.

The daughter of Mrs. W. Burnett, 1121 Main Street, she became the bride of Peter Burnett Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Thompson, 1121 Main Street, Victoria, British Columbia. Garden Notes

Daisy Gets Dirty Deal

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

The plant which gets the dirtiest deal in the average garden is undoubtedly the Michaelmas daisy. It is so easy to grow so good looking and so long lived that the clumps are usually relegated to the sunniest, driest, and least fertile corner of the garden where they are left to their own devices.

I must admit to treating my Michaelmas daisies in exactly this way. They were growing in a low corner of the garden which had been filled with ashes from the furnace and they only got started about three years ago. Yet they flourished and expanded considerably under these horrible conditions.

When I realized the possibilities of these plants I shifted them to a more fertile and sheltered spot. They are now doing well and every year I am amazed by the size and range of the flowers.

Too many of us are still growing the old-fashioned Michaelmas daisy in a poor corner of the garden and it is only a question of time before the plant will be forgotten. We have them available in a really beautiful range in a great range of colors.

One variety which has been particularly popular is the 'Double White' which has a profusion of pure white flowers. This is a very attractive plant and in a very attractive garden.

Then there is the 'Double Yellow' which has a profusion of pure yellow flowers. This is a very attractive plant and in a very attractive garden.

M. Michaelmas daisy is a very attractive plant and in a very attractive garden. It is a very attractive plant and in a very attractive garden.

Truth Outdoes Fiction

It is a sad fact that the average person who goes to a movie is more likely to be entertained by a story that is completely untrue than by one that is completely true.

There have been a number of movies in the last few years that have been based on true events. These movies have been very popular and have been very successful.

Winning Contract

By Howard Schenken and Richard L. Frey

Some readers may wonder at the bidding of a contract in a bridge game. In many instances, however, this would be the expert bid. With nine points and a five-card suit, North would be expected to bid.
